New retail park to open within a year

HANNAH MIRSKY
@HannahMirskyCN

LIDL, Home Bargains and Pets at Home are set to open in Haverhill within a year.

A planning application to create a retail park in the town's Ehringshausen Way was given the green light by St Edmundsbury Borough Council last week.

Contractors will be on site from late August, and construction work is set to be finished by April next year – with the shops open from late spring or early summer 2017.

The £5million site, owned by the Cambridge-based Howard Group, will provide 110 jobs.

Howard Group development manager Colin Brown said: "Haverhill's biggest problem is people travelling out of Haverhill to do their shopping. It has always been our view that the more comprehensive the retail offering in Haverhill can be made, the less people will travel to Cambridge or Bury to do their shopping."

The retail park will be home to a 14,500 sq ft Lidl, a 13,500 sq ft Home Bargains and a 6,000 sq ft Pets at Home, as well as one other store.

Mr Brown said having national names running stores in Haverhill was likely to attract more large chains to the town.

He said: "The fact that Pets, that Lidl, that Home Bargains are coming to the site, moving into the town, investing in the town, will only serve to encourage others to do so."

He explained that the formula national retailers use when deciding whether or not to open a branch in a town takes into account how many national names are retailing there already.

The retail park is set to occupy the site of the former Project Office Furniture factory, which has been vacant since 2007. It was bought by the Howard Group in 2008.

A previous plan to develop the site six years ago fell through after anchor retailer Wickes pulled out.

Planning documents submitted by the Howard Group say: "The development will transform this gateway site at a key entrance to the town and represents an important and very visible sign of confidence in the town."

Councillors have previously raised concerns about safe pedestrian access to the site across Ehringshausen Way, which is a busy main road.

However, an agreement has now been signed to make sure a pedestrian crossing is created on Ehringshausen Way and existing pedestrian crossing facilities on Stour Valley Road – to the side of the site – are improved.

The Howard Group also says that the new retail park will not significantly increase traffic during peak hours on the already congested Ehringshausen Way. This is because most trips taken for retail purposes are made in the middle of the day, not at commuting time.

As well as the retail park, the Howard Group has been granted outline planning permission to build industrial units further to the back of the site.

This £3.5million investment is set to see a further 140 jobs created, bringing the total number of roles on the site up to 250.

The Howard Group is currently working on finding occupiers for these units and will then work with them to create spaces tailored to their needs.

Mr Brown said they were looking for industrial occupiers who would benefit from some frontage and proximity to the retail park.

BURNT-OUT: The scene in Abington Place last Thursday

Arson arrest after house fire rescue

A MAN has been arrested after a "suspicious" house fire in Haverhill.

Police and fire service were called to the house in Abington Place around 8.20am last Thursday, July 14.

A person was trapped on the first floor and had to be rescued. Firefighters used six sets of breathing apparatus, three hose reel jets and one covering jet to get the fire under control by 9.35am.

A 22-year-old Haverhill man was arrested later that day on suspicion of arson

with intent to endanger life, and assault.

He was taken to Bury St
Edmunds Police Investigation Centre where he was interviewed by detectives.

The ambulance service attended but no-one required medical treatment.

COUNCIL

Plans approved to tackle fouling

COUNCILLORS have given the green light to plans to tackle dog fouling in Haverhill.

At a meeting of St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Overview and Scrutiny Committee yesterday, councillors voted in favour of officers rolling out an anti-dog fouling programme.

They heard about a trial of the programme in Wickhambrook which reduced dog fouling by more than 50 per cent.

Measures used in the village included installing bag dispensers near a "hotspot" playing field, and increasing publicity surrounding the issue with new signage.

Cllr Paul Hopfensberger said: "It's a major issue and this stuff is gross. We don't want little Johnny playing on the field slipping in dog mess. It's just gross."

Councillors voted in favour of introducing a reward

HANNAH MIRSKY
@HannahMirskyCN

scheme for reporting on dog fouling.

This would work by giving a portion of the fine paid by a person who did not pick up dog mess to the person who reported it.

Cllr Jeremy Farthing said
he supported the reward scheme and continued: "I've been driving up and down the A14 and through the borough looking at the rubbish thrown in the area by people who don't care, and of course there is a fine to be had for littering."

"As well as dog fouling – obviously dog fouling is an excellent place to start – I would like to see a reward for docking in the people who are making such a mess of our country."

As well as the reward scheme, councillors voted in favour of a new Public Space Protection Order. This would enable the borough to raise the fine for dog fouling from £50 to £100.

However, Cllrs John Burns and Tony Brown pointed out that this would be difficult to enforce without a dog warden or police support.

Other measures set to be introduced include the publicity scheme trialled in Wickhambrook, focused on "hotspots" which are particularly bad for dog fouling.

The council is also looking at a banner scheme at a sports ground in Haverhill.

The committee will review the measures within 12 months.

Fun at the Sunshine Bash!

FUN IN THE SUN: The crowds enjoyed the activities on offer at the Summer Bash

THOUSANDS of people turned out for the Haverhill Summer Bash on Sunday.

The event saw families heading to the town's recreation ground in Camps Road for attractions including a car show, a dog show, a car boot sale and two races.

New attractions at this year's event included a falconry display, a balloon release and new areas for craft stalls and sitting and eating.

Organiser David Doughty said: "The falconry display was something new that went down really well. Each year we will try and add something new."

He estimated that the number of people who attended the all-day event was "in the thousands".

There was entertainment in the arena including dance shows, music and for the first time a parkour display.

The event was raising money for a number of local good causes including women's group Wednesdays for Women, disability charity LampH and Haverhill Scouts and Guides. Other beneficiaries include Suffolk Mind's allotment project Get Up and Grow, Haverhill in Bloom and the Haverhill Community Resource Unit.

@HannahMirskyCN

Mr Doughty said that the Summer Bash committee was set to regroup in a few weeks' time to add up the total money raised, go over Sunday's events and to start planning for next year's bash.

He said that the highlight of the day was honouring Ertunc Mihrikani, also known as "Stav", who retired in March after selling kebabs from his van in Haverhill for more than 30 years.

Mr Mihrikani was presented with a watch from the Summer Bash committee and was the judge of the car show.

Mr Doughty continued: "He was overwhelmed. We celebrate certain people in the community and someone who has been a businessman in the community for 30 years deserves that."

Imitation firearm charge for man, 29

A HAVERHILL man has been charged and is set to appear in court after an incident in Haverhill town centre.

Shortly after 4.30pm on Friday afternoon, several reports were made to Suffolk Police about a man carrying a handgun in Haverhill town centre.

Armed officers were sent to investigate.

At around 5pm 29-year-old Rafal Jaszowski, of Connaught Road in Haverhill, was arrested.

He was interviewed by officers and on Saturday was charged with possession of an imitation handgun.

Jaszowski has been bailed to appear at Bury St Edmunds Magistrates Court on Monday, August 8.

Town assault

A MAN was left unconscious after an assault in Haverhill High Street around 2am on Sunday. Two men punched the victim in the side of the head.

COURT

Dad harrassed former partner

A HAVERHILL father who was given a suspended sentence for breaking his baby's arm has been sent to prison for sending abusive messages to his former partner.

Joshua Lawrence, 24, made more than 100 texts and calls to his former partner despite having been warned to stop by police.

The offence puts him in breach of a suspended sentence he was given for an attack in which he broke his baby son's arm.

In January, Caroline Allison told Cambridge Crown Court how Lawrence's son, Willis, was born on January 21, 2015, and the offence took place on March 6.

She said: "There was a report to social services from a member of the public about the concern they had for the baby."

"Willis was examined in hospital and had a 'suspicious and non-accidental' spiral type fracture of his left wrist."

JOSH THOMAS

@JoshThomasCN

The baby's mother told police how on March 6 had gone out for a walk with Willis. Lawrence returned after an hour "agitated" because the baby had been crying the whole journey.

Miss Allison added: "The mum said she would deal with Willis but Lawrence grabbed him by the wrist and lifted him forcefully out of the pram. This also caused Willis to have a black eye as he hit his head on the side of the pram."

Lawrence, of Sturmer Road, Haverhill, was handed a suspended sentence.

He appeared at Cambridge Crown Court last Thursday. He had previously pleaded guilty to harassment.

Judge Jonathan Haworth said: "On March 17, you started a campaign of texts to your former partner and, in the following days, there were over 100 texts and phone calls. What aggravates this is that, on March 20, you were served a harassment notice by Suffolk Police, yet you continued to send texts to her and distress your former partner."

Lawrence was sentenced to three months in prison for harassment. This activated the 12-month suspended sentence he had already been given. Judge Haworth said the sentences should be served concurrently.

"This was such a blatant breach, it cannot be ignored," said Judge Haworth.

Lawrence was also handed a five-year restraining order, banning him from contacting his former partner. Breaking the order could result in his being sent to prison for five years.

Vive La France! Primary school pupils celebrate, French-style...

CHILDREN celebrated French culture with a range of activities yesterday. Students at Clements Primary School in Haverhill were marking yesterday's French national holiday, Bastille Day. Nearly 300 pupils at the school worked in mixed-age groups on activities related to French culture. These included tasting French food, building the Eiffel Tower out of straws and recreating the Tour de France on scooter boards. They learnt about the famous sites and areas that the Tour passes, and sung songs in French. Language leaders and students from Castle Manor Academy visited the school to help the pupils with their French. Clements headteacher Caroline Zwierchowska-Dod said: "It's really good for children to learn about a foreign country and what life is like in that country - what they eat, what they do in school and some of the other attractions of the country. "We hope it will encourage them to visit France."

Tools worth £1,500 stolen from vans

THREE vans had power tools worth more than £1,500 stolen from them on the same night.

Ford Transit vans parked in Haverhill's Burton End, Ovington Place and Arrendene Road were broken into overnight between Thursday, July 14 and Friday, July 15.

In both the Burton End and Ovington Place incidents, the side door of the vans had been forced.

At Burton End, tools worth a total of £910 were stolen. These included a blue and red Bosch 240 power drill in a blue box worth £250, a green Makita drill worth £240, a green Makita 18-volt drill worth £180 and a Makita multi-tool worth £240. Various drill bits were also taken.

At Ovington Place, a grinder, drills and two power saws were taken, worth a total of £600.

At Arrendene Road, various power tools were stolen and an empty Makita toolbox was found down the road.

Vandals cause £1,000 damage at rugby club

HANNAH MIRSKY
@HannahMirskyCN

VANDALS tore down a rugby club goalpost on Sunday night – causing at least £1,000 damage.

It is the latest incident in a spate of vandalism suffered by the club.

Vice-chair at Haverhill Rugby Club, David Halsey said previously turf had been pulled up, security lights had been smashed and a defibrillator had been pulled off the wall.

He said: "We are repeatedly having vandalism done round the club buildings but this was the final straw."

The club has now started an online crowdfunding page to raise money for repairs to the goalposts and has already raised more than £200.

Mr Halsey discovered the damaged post at 8.30am on Monday morning when he went to let someone in.

He said: "We were very angry about it. We have invested a lot into the club and the grounds for the people of Haverhill."

He said the goalpost had not been damaged at 6pm the previous evening.

Members of the club assessed the damage on Monday and found that repairs will cost at least £1,000. If they have to dig up the post's concrete base the work could cost more than £2,000.

The goalposts had been gifted to the club just three years ago as part of the RFU's Lead-up and Legacy programme to improve facilities at clubs across the country in the build-up to the Rugby World Cup.

Mr Halsey said: "We were

VANDALISM: The damage to the goalpost on Monday

given them and they were far better quality than what we had before."

Mr Halsey said: "I put it on Facebook how disappointing it was that the vandalism had happened again. Members of the public not even linked to the rugby club said: 'Look, can we donate some money?'"

Wellwishers have been posting messages with their donations.

The grandparents of one member of the club wrote: "So impressed with what the club do for the youngsters. Felt we had to give our support."

Another couple wrote: "Hope we can raise a good bit towards the cost, here's our little bit. So angry that this has happened."

The pitch where the goalpost was damaged is not currently in use as it is set to be refurbished over the coming year. Mr Halsey said he hoped it could be fixed by the coming autumn.

He said: "At the end of the day, the rugby club, we're all volunteers. We give up our own time and we are doing it for the community. The facility is there because we do it for the community."

To show your support by donating visit crowdfunding.justgiving.com/haverhillrugby.

If you have any information or saw what happened call Haverhill police on 101 quoting crime reference number 37/45115/16.

Can we afford to eat meat?

THERE'S an overpopulation problem all right, but not the one you might think. There are seven billion people on our planet, but you have to times that number by 10 to get the 70 billion farm animals driving the worst environmental crisis of modern times.

While human numbers are rising at roughly 1.2 per cent a year, livestock numbers are rising at double that rate at around 2.4 per cent a year.

Animal agriculture emits high levels of CO₂, nitrous oxide and methane, together responsible for at least 14.5 per cent of global greenhouse gas emissions. This is more than all of the world's transport – cars, buses, trains, planes, boats, ships – combined.

What we really need is a public education campaign. Most people in this country, I suspect, still have little idea that the production of meat, fish and dairy products is destroying the planet. Government policy would also help, and if the UK wants a blueprint then it should look to China, who recently announced its plan to reduce meat consumption by 50 per cent to tackle climate change.

A global shift to a vegan diet would see climate emissions decrease by 70 per cent by 2050, according to a recent study by Oxford University, and result in a monetary saving of over $1trillion in costs linked to climate change and healthcare. Can we afford not to stop eating meat?

Please reconsider your diet for the sake of future generations.

Lisa Mason School of Dance In Wonderland at Her Majesty's Theatre

At the end of April, 40 students aged 6-17 years from the Lisa Mason School of Dance took part with other dance schools from across the country in a show at Her Majesty's Theatre.

The day started travelling by coach to attend a dress rehearsal of the whole show before the main show in the evening. A number of parents came to watch the evening show. The school performed two dance routines, the first a ballet called 'Alice In Wonderland'.

Principal Lisa Mason said: "It was the most challenging routine we have ever performed. Each child had a role within the dance and different corners of the stage but all were telling the story based on the new film from start to finish in 6 minutes. There is so much going on at one time that most people who have seen it have said they needed to see it again to watch the other characters."

The second dance was a fun tap dance coincidentally called 'Fire' and combined three different tracks with fire as the theme.

Lisa added: "It was a long enjoyable day. It was such a great experience and opportunity for the dancers seeing how a professional stage works and such a thrill to dance on such a large stage with powerful stage lights."

"We repeated the dance for parents, family and friends who were unable to attend a number of weeks ago. It will have to be re-set for our dance Show on 8th and 9th October at the Arts Centre due to the size of the stage."

Caring man wins award

A GRANDFATHER who has terminal cancer has been given an award for his dedication at work and charity fundraising.

Described as "a very selfless caring person who dedicates his life to improving the lives of so many other people", Mick Pilling, of Haverhill, was given the Adenbrooke's monthly 'You Made a Difference' award on Friday.

The 63-year-old has worked for the Bowel Cancer Screening Programme for eight years in the Adenbrooke's Treatment Centre.

Despite having cancer four times, he has raised £20,000 for Macmillan, including cycling from London to Paris just three-and-a-half months after having a bowel cancer operation.

One of his nominations said: "Throughout having chemo and his bad days he comes in and delivers a fantastic service to the patients as well as his colleagues."

Mick was first diagnosed with tonsil cancer in 2004 after finding a lump in his neck. The grandfather-of-four was also found to have neck cancer. He had seven weeks' daily radiotherapy and five years' follow up treatment.

FREYA LENG

@FreyaLengCN

He got the all clear in 2010 and started fundraising for Macmillan after receiving support from the charity during his treatment and after losing three family members to cancer.

"I signed up to climb Ben Nevis in May 2010," he said. "Since then I have done London to Paris, I've cycled that three times."

After being diagnosed with bowel cancer in February last year, he did his third cycle ride from London to Paris.

"I just got on the bike and as any keen cyclist would say, once you get on and start moving adrenaline takes over," he said.

Mick can no longer cycle after he was diagnosed with inoperable liver cancer in April.

He is now taking six months out of work to rest, but has no plans to stop volunteering.

He said: "It's about trying to be positive and being as active as you can while you still can."

Fun day to be held at DIY store

A FUN day is to take place at a Haverhill DIY store on Saturday.

The event will be held from 10am to 4pm in the car park at the town's B&Q in Park Road.

The event has been organised by three intrepid employees of the store, Amanda Procto, Dave Farmer and Julie Davies.

The three are taking on a hike up Mount Kilimanjaro in January to raise money for the Zoological Society of East Anglia, which runs Banham Zoo and wildlife park Africa Alive!.

They are aiming to raise £3,900 each for the charity.

The team is hoping to raise up to £1,000 from Saturday's fun day.

There will be games including a 'human fruit machine', a chance to throw wet sponges at B&Q's manager and 'secret boxes' which contain vouchers.

There is also set to be a raffle on the day, with first prize being a barbecue with accessories and a £100 Valspar voucher. Second prize is family tickets to Haverhill Cineworld, Banham Zoo and a voucher for a family meal out in Haverhill.

Dave said: "Definitely come along – there are some great prizes on offer. The more the merrier."

COURT

Man who hit staff gets jail warning

JOSH THOMAS
@JoshThomasCN

A MAN has avoided jail after hitting a brawler with a cricket bat and attacking hospital staff, biting one of them on the hand.

Ian Tucker, 44, of Fritton Court, Haverhill, appeared at Cambridge Crown Court on Thursday for sentencing. He had already been convicted of assault and possession of an offensive weapon.

Tucker was given an eight-month prison sentence, suspended for 18 months on condition he co-operates with receiving treatment for his mental health.

The court was told the attacks took place on two separate occasions.

On October 27 last year, Tucker arrived at Addenbrooke's hospital in Cambridge demanding treatment. He was assessed by doctors and when told there was nothing wrong with him refused to leave.

He then got into a wheelchair and refused to move. Security staff wheeled him off the premises and attempted to persuade him to leave. He attacked the staff.

Duncan O'Donnell, prosecuting, said: "Mr

Tucker threw himself out of the wheelchair and started flailing his arms around. He struck one security man and then another. He bit another on his right hand. Further staff arrived and he was restrained until the police arrived."

On a separate occasion, Tucker had used a cricket bat when he got involved in a brawl outside his flat in March 2015.

Mr O'Donnell said: "There was a brawl outside his house. Two men were thrown out of a pub by locals. They were arguing and ended up on the floor. On CCTV you can see Mr Tucker coming out of his house armed with a cricket bat. He struck one of them full force with the bat. He can then be seen walking away."

Tucker denied this offence, was convicted, took it to appeal where the conviction was upheld.

Mitigating, Jonathan Masters told the court Tucker was on medication for mental health issues and that the episode at Addenbrooke's was a misjudged attempt to get help.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Man in 80s airlifted to hospital after fall

A MAN in his 80s was taken to hospital by air after suffering serious injuries following a fall.

The East Anglian Air Ambulance was sent to the man's Haverhill home and medics put measures in place to protect his brain.

After a full assessment with specialist equipment the man was airlifted to Addenbrooke's.

The incident took place on July 13.

Chapel is blessed at new funeral parlour

CLERGY attended a new funeral home in Haverhill's Queen Street last Wednesday to bless the chapel.

The Rev Canon Graham Owen from St Mary's Church formally blessed the chapel at the new Peasgood and Skeates funeral parlour in Queen Street.

The Mayor of Haverhill, David Roach, also attended to formally open the new funeral parlour.

New community cafe will provide support for families

HANNAH MIRSKY

@HannahMirskyCN

A NEW community cafe has opened in Haverhill.

The twice-weekly CHEX pop-up cafe is also set to play host to community groups including one for parents and toddlers and a group for unseen illnesses.

The cafe, serving cakes, hot drinks and sandwiches, will be held at the Chalkstone Community Centre in Haverhill's Strasbourg Square from 10am to 2pm on Mondays and Thursdays.

It was officially opened by the Mayor of Haverhill, David Roach, on Monday.

Renovations have been under way to prepare the cafe area, with a mural of a Van Gogh cafe painting on one wall.

The project has been set up by the River of Life Community Church, which took over as new owners of the community centre last year.

Project leader Sharon Gower said: "We are hoping residents will come in and we will just have a chat to them, get to know people in the area. From that we are hoping to generate social and emotional support groups."

"CHEX is all about meeting the social and emotional needs of residents."

She already has two regular groups planned for the cafe. Starting in September will be CHEXsters, a group for parents and toddlers.

Before that, probably in August, a group called Unseen is to be launched for people who have experience of unseen illnesses. It will combine a talk or interview with a fun activity which could be anything from taking photos to decorating doughnuts.

Sharon is hoping that residents will suggest more groups that would benefit the community.

She said: "It's got to be very self-led, really the community leading the events themselves."

Anyone is welcome to drop into the cafe, and Sharon welcomes people getting in touch about volunteering or starting a group.

SHOP FRONT: Saffron Walden, 1953
THROUGH THE AGES: The Glasswells fleet of vehicles, left

ADVERTISING FEATURE

AS we delve further into the history of Glasswells, we now look at their further expansion and the Glasswells community spirit.

In Saffron Walden there was further expansion in 1988 when Glasswells refurbished a storage building in King Street and George Street, turning it into a 1000 sq. ft. carpet shop.

With the new shop front now on George Street, this effectively gave them a second town centre location, significantly increasing their presence.

The main store was improved at the same time, replacing the King Street front and making significant interior alterations to improve furniture displays.

A total of £50,000 was spent on improvements.

The Saffron Walden shop has now been trading continuously for over 60 years and late in 2015 the shop was refurbished and updated again, bringing it in line with modern trends.

Glasswells have always been proud of their community spirit and so in 1954 Jerry Glasswell offered by way of a token of appreciation for the support the local communities had provided: free tea and sugar at Christmas for all pensioners.

Two pounds of sugar and a quarter of tea were first distributed in Bury St Edmunds, which was later extended to Haverhill, Saffron Walden and Stowmarket.

To collect their free gift, all pensioners had to do was come to the store and present their pension books.

They came in their thousands and Jerry was often seen chatting with customers who he soon regarded as friends.

In 1975, he said: "I look forward to this as a family occasion. I meet old customers, old friends and people I served with in the First World War". In that same year, the Bury Free Press newspaper reported that 750 pensioners were served in the first hour.

1954: The St Andrew's Street store in Bury St Edmunds

Continuing on the theme of community spirit, one of Glasswells' core values is to sponsor local sporting clubs and events and staff are actively encouraged to think of ways to raise money for local charities and causes.

In the next instalment, we will look at more recent times, bringing the Glasswells timeline up to date.

HEALTH

Health services: Cuts proposed

HEALTH services for vulnerable adults in Haverhill could be cut.

Suffolk's Clinical Commissioning Groups (CCGs) are looking to save £13million and have launched a consultation on two money-saving proposals.

One of their suggestions is scrapping the marginalised and vulnerable adults (MVA) services in the west of the county, including Haverhill.

These services are drop-in clinics that help homeless people, refugees and asylum seekers, Gypsies, Travellers and Roma people and ex-offenders. The clinics help these people get access to the services they need.

The CCGs say that the vast majority of demand for these services is in the Ipswich area, so they will focus the services there.

They estimate that 35 people each year in West Suffolk will be negatively affected.

The CCGs say they would find ways to "improve advocacy and signposting" in the west of the county. The proposal would save £369,000 across both CCGs.

HANNAH MIRSKY
@HannahMirskyCN

At a meeting on Tuesday night, Haverhill Town Councillors expressed their dismay at the proposals.

Mayor of Haverhill David Roach said: "The disturbing factor is that the less well-advantaged people that struggle most - their services could be cut and moved over to Ipswich."

Cllr Jason Crooks said: "There's a huge deficit of mental health services in Haverhill already. The fact that they can do this is outrageous."

The CCGs are also looking at cutting their IVF fertility treatment services. They currently fund two cycles of IVF treatment for women under 40 and one cycle for women aged 40 to 42.

They are proposing either reducing this to one cycle per couple - saving £345,000 - or no cycles, with couples able to apply for individual funding. The second option would save £690,000.

Ed Garratt, the CCGs' chief officer, said: "We are not making these proposals lightly and we understand that these are hugely emotive subjects. It is important to gather views on what these proposals mean to local people and what impact they could have on their lives."

You can participate in the consultation by visiting www.ipswichandeastssuffolkccg.nhs.uk/Haveyour-say/Publicengagement.aspx

An engagement event will be held in Haverhill's Market Square on Friday, August 12 from 11am to 2pm.

Cultivating art

THERE'S a sense of ceremony to arriving at Jesus College. To reach the gate, set well back from the ruckus of the road, you have to process up the 'chimney': a wide walled path, said to take its name from the Middle French 'chemin', meaning 'way', it's the aisle to the college's altar.

The gatehouse is a grand affair, with its gilded crests and castellated roofline. But it's a little doorway within the gate itself which draws the eye; left invitingly ajar, it gives a glimpse of the green beyond.

Spanning 27 acres – of which 14 are open grounds – Jesus boasts some of the largest, and arguably most lovely, gardens in Cambridge. Step out into First Court and an added attraction becomes clear: a large bronze horse stands in the middle of the lawn, part of a wide-ranging collection of sculpture some 20 years in the curation.

The horse – face beatific, front leg raised as if for the off – is Welsh artist Barry Flanagan's take on a Greek antiquity held at St Mark's, Venice. The first sculpture to become a permanent fixture at Jesus, back in the late 80s, it's now synonymous with the college.

"Before the horse arrived, the wisteria was the star of the show in First Court; for me, if I'm being totally honest, the wisteria is still the star of the show," says head gardener Paul Stearn.

"It's not that I don't like the horse – it's a lovely thing! – but that wisteria's one of the best in Cambridge; when it's in full flower, you'd have to go a long way to beat it."

Paul's loyalty to his plants is understandable: he's been head gardener at Jesus for 27 years, and worked as under-gardener at the college before that. "I had to go away to come back again, if that makes sense – otherwise I'd never have gone. I love these gardens."

Founded in 1496, on the initiative of one John Alcock, Bishop of Ely, Jesus was built on the site of a defunct Benedictine nunnery. The chapel was originally the nuns' church; dating from the 12th century, it's believed to be the oldest university building in Cambridge.

"Peterhouse is the oldest college, but our chapel's the oldest college building," Paul explains.

The college plot is unusual, in Cambridge terms, in several ways. Firstly, its enormity encompasses all the sports grounds, from rugby pitch to tennis courts. Today, games of both cricket and croquet are under way; there's a soundtrack of thunks and thwacks, as mallet and bat meet ball.

Secondly, all but one of the courts are three-sided rather than four; instead of being enclosed, each is open to the next. There's a flow and a friendliness to the layout, which leads on to the third point of difference: aside from two segments of showpiece lawn (including First Court's first-impression chequerboard) and the sacred ground where the nuns are interred, students are allowed – in fact encouraged – to walk on the grass.

"One of the greatest rewards is seeing the gardens enrich the lives of the people who live and work here; knowing the gardens bring them pleasure, and perhaps a few moments of peace, is lovely," says Paul.

Having grown up in a green-fingered family – his father had a penchant for dahlias and chrysanthus – Paul says "a love of being outside, and of being close to nature" drew him into horticulture. A fortnight's work experience at Cherry Hinton Hall – "essentially two weeks spent in a greenhouse, learning how to propagate; propagation is an addictive business" – sealed the deal.

More than 30 years on, Paul's enthusiasm remains undimmed. "I still love being outside and getting to see the seasons turn. The more I get older, I must admit I like the winter. Late spring, early summer – that's my favourite time. When the trees are all green and the wisteria's in flower. . ."

Now it's full summer, and the memory for another year (and another success is, says Paul, "timing your work just right: in January if it's mild, in February if it's not"), climbing roses are stealing the limelight. Senior specimens of bright red Schoolgirl and creamy Madame Alice are in full sprawl across the redbrick walls; though planted in the 50s, they're flushed with flowers.

The narrow beds which border the buildings, as in most college courts, have just been refreshed with summer bedding: impatiens, zinnias, gazanias, all selected for their good nature and bright blooms.

Gardening in courts has its challenges, concedes Paul, leading the way to the Tudor-built Cloister Court: the only four-walled plot on the site, it's simply lawned and lined with vines (including Boston Ivy, with its promise of ruby-red foliage come autumn). The buildings cast certain corners into perpetual shade, while others, which catch the sun and feel the heat from encircling walls, are semi-permanent hotspots.

There's one corner, by the chapel, where it's so hot you can't even get grass to grow, so we've got a little fern bed which is doing well. It's also a favourite for slugs by luck.

It has to be verbenas, says Paul: they hail from hot climates, and they play to a plant's strengths. "For the cloisters to be hung with baskets round about now, you need space all summer long; you grow plants to a colour scheme of red and blue, silver and blue, even red and black, the college colours. But we're between greenhouses at the moment and having to buy in the plants – so this year it'll be more of a rainbow."

Next on the tour are the adjoining Pump and Second Courts, which open in turn on to North Court with its sharp-angled 1960s accommodation block. Designed by Cambridge architect David Roberts and now listed, it's a Marmite building; the view softened by a lawn lined with pairs of velvety bottle yews. A relic of a formal Victorian garden, its paved quadrants long since grassed over, the yews gather round a fledgling Persian Ironwood. Promising scarlet blossoms on its bare winter branches, and leaves that turn from green to purple then russet as the year wears on, it's a showgirl of a tree.

Adjacent to North Court runs The Orchard, where the specimen trees – including a Spanish oak and Californian redwood – are inter-planted with large-scale sculptures. There's a sigmoid concrete piece (Geoffrey Clarke's Call it Hadrian's Wall), which snakes across the grass and embeds in a knoll, the remnant of a wartime bunker. There's a pair of enormous rusted metal discs, akin to giant shields (Roger Hiorns, Untitled), and, glinting in the midday sun, a towering glass helix (Empress by Danny Lane). It's quite something.

The sculpture collection owes much to former Master Baron Colin Renfrew. An archaeology professor, he spearheaded a series of short-run sculpture exhibitions in the grounds, which sparked the permanent collection.

The shows continue today: 2009 saw Angel of the North creator Sir Antony Gormley bring 19 of his Event Horizon figures to Jesus; standing on rooftops and lying on lawns, they made a lasting impression. The college now has a Gormley to call its own: titled Learning to See, it stands in the arched window of the Quincentenary Library.

In Chapel Court, the gardens adopt a country house air thanks, in large part, to an enormous shrubbery. A 6ft-wide border, running almost the length of the court, it replaced a park-style rotation of bedding plants in the 70s. With some bushes clipped into smooth shapes and others left to grow wild and free, it's a masterclass in planting. Sun-yellow Moroccan broom blooms beside sky-blue ceanothus, all under-planted with spikes of orange hawkbit: "Some people call it a weed, I call it a wild flower," says Paul, "and a very pretty wild flower it is too."

An all-angles statue by Pop Art pioneer Sir Eduardo Paolozzi stands guard by the chapel, and a pair of Eric Gill angels flutter above an archway; an eminent stone carver, who created the Prospero and Ariel relief for BBC Broadcasting House, he's posthumously best-known for his sexual proclivities (among other things, he documented relations with his sister, children, and dog).

The latest addition to the sculpture trail is Paul's own brainchild: called Cherry Tree Spire, it's a cutting-edge contemporary woodwork by Richard Bray, which literally erupts from the ground.

"When the Prunus padus here died off, I thought it was a shame to just pave over the spot – so I suggested Richard work his magic on the trunk. . . ." Standing in the crook of the ancient chapel, the spliced and shiny wood looks wonderful.

Other recent arrivals at Jesus include an art-meets-function potting shed, shaped like an upside-down plant pot; tucked in a corner of the Fellows' Garden, it sits beside the in-progress greenhouses.

Paul completes the tour with a meander through the college wood: stretching along the Jesus Green boundary of the grounds, it follows the route of Jesus Ditch, an offshoot of the Cam. Paul's team – he has five full-timers and one part-timer – won a biodiversity award not long ago, in recognition of their wildlife-friendly working across the gardens and, in particular, for the attention they lavish on the wood.

A haven for newts, which inhabit carefully constructed log piles, water voles and all manner of birds, including the elusive nightingale, it's a pocket wilderness in the centre of the city. Little wonder it's inspired poetry: in 1792, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, one of Jesus' most famous sons, penned a tribute titled 'In Jesus Wood'.

"We restored the pathway in the mid-90s, which was quite a job," says Paul. "We wanted members of the college to be able to come in here and surround themselves with green and quiet."

"Even after all these years, the novelty of working in such a beautiful place – right in the middle of Cambridge – hasn't worn off. I think most college gardeners would agree: it's a privilege."

Laughter and magic

Tomorrow night Haverhill Arts Centre hosts an evening of laughter and magic with Edinburgh Fringe Previews from two top comedians well known from stage, screen and radio.

Henry Paker and Pete Firman will be on stage from 8.00pm.

Pete Firman combines magic and comedy in his show and he's been described as 'The new poster-boy for British comedy magic' by The Telegraph.

He has made TV appearances on BBC One, Channel 4, Five and Sky1, and was a regular on BBC show The Magicians.

Henry Paker, who was very popular last time he came to the Arts Centre, bases his act on observational humour – with a slightly eccentric and left-field feel.

He has written for TV panel shows including Mock the Week and Never Mind the Buzzcocks, and stars in the BBC Radio Four show Small Scenes.

Tickets are £10.00 and £9.00 for members and can be booked via www.haverhillartscentre.co.uk or by calling 01440 714140.

The Arts Centre has lots of other famous comedy faces appearing this autumn, including Shappi Khorsandi, Seann Walsh, Lucy Porter and Stephen K Amos.

Thursday 21 – Friday 29 July 2016

■ A live broadcast from the Almeida of Richard III is being screened on Thursday 21 July at 7pm. Directed by Almeida Artistic Director Rupert Goold, Ralph Fiennes plays Shakespeare's most notorious villain with Vanessa Redgrave as Queen Margaret.

■ Calling all comedy lovers, we have not one but two cracking Edinburgh Fringe Preview comedians coming to Haverhill on Friday 22 July at 8pm. First up following previous sell-out performances at the Festival, 'the UK's leading comedy magician' Pete Firman. Expect Pete's trademark blend of crowd-pleasing comedy and jaw-dropping magic, this is a performance not to be missed! And then Henry Paker, stand up master craftsman. Henry is rifling through a dusty box of bits and bobs from his past, and is sent on an epic quest into his own mind. A decluttering of the soul.

■ Can't wait to see André Rieu and The Johann Strauss Orchestra perform on the Vrijthof Square in the King of Waltz's hometown of Maastricht on Saturday 23 July at 7pm? André Rieu's 2016 Maastricht Concert will be an extraordinary night of musical entertainment in a magnificent setting.

■ Following the success of Pongo's Party last year, Marty McDonald's Toy Machine on Friday 29 July at 2pm is a brand new show featuring the voices of CBeebies' Justin Fletcher and Nicole Davis as Pongo the Pig and Molly-Moo the Cow. Everyone at Marty McDonald's Farm is delighted with a special delivery – the Toy Machine that makes all of the toys in the world! But then they realise that Crafty the Crow has been up to mischief and it shouldn't really be there at all. Worse still, the machine has stopped working, so they need to fix it before the Toymaker comes to get it back! The show running time for all you busy mums' out there is 1 hour 20 minutes (including a 15-minute interval). If you liked Pongo's Party when it was at the Arts Centre last year you should love this!

■ On the cinema front Angry Birds 2D (U) is showing on Thursday 28 July at 10.30am. Based on the hit computer game, this eye-popping comedy follows the antics of the Angry Birds who are all living a happy life on a paradise island, until it is invaded by little green piggies. This is followed by Love and Friendship (U), adapted from the Jane Austen novella Lady Susan, at 7.30pm, starring Kate Beckinsale, Chloë Sevigny and James Fleet. Beautiful young widow Lady Susan Vernon visits the estate of her in-laws to wait out the colourful rumours about her circulating through polite society. While there, she attracts the simultaneous attentions of the young, handsome Reginald DeCourcy, the rich and silly Sir James Martin and the divinely handsome but married Lord Manwaring. Finally Sing Street (12A) on Friday 29 July at 7.30pm takes place in 1980s Dublin. Conor decides to win the heart of the mysterious and cool Raphina inviting her to star in his band's music video. The only trouble is he doesn't actually have a band. Cue the hasty invention of 'Cosmo' and his group.

■ Events to look forward to include a live broadcast from Glyndebourne of the witty love-hate duel Beatrice et Benedict sung in French with English subtitles on Tuesday 9 August at 6.30pm, and Haverhill & District Flower Club's Floral Art Competition, always a favourite, on Friday 12 from 1.30pm to 5pm and Saturday 13 August from 9.30am to 4.30pm.

CINEMA: Love and Friendship, a Jane Austen film adaptation starring Kate Beckinsdale and Chloë Sevigny, above and right.

Does any other financial investment deliver such a handsome dividend?

The effectiveness consultancy Benchmarking have analysed what happens when companies include press advertising in their media mix.

They looked at 500 econometric models, across a five-year period and discovered that adding newspapers dramatically increases the return on investment of other media.

In the financial sector they reviewed companies ranging from high street banks to insurance providers.

And they found that adding newspapers dramatically increases the overall effectiveness of the entire campaign, by up to 5.7 times.

That is getting on for a six-fold increase in ROI.

Clearly, if you are in the financial industry, you ought to be in the newspapers.

But as the table here shows, the uplift in other categories also proves uplifting.

Wrangler adds new 75th treat

ICON:
Jeep
Wrangler
75th Anniversary

MAJOR enhancements to the popular and successful Jeep Wrangler range of SUV vehicles have been announced, with details of a new engine and a raft of enhancements to the current model for 2016.

In addition, and to celebrate the iconic 4x4 brand's 75th birthday, Jeep has revealed details of a 75th Anniversary Wrangler for the UK. The limited edition Jeep Wrangler 75th Anniversary is based on the Overland model, but with several key differences, including unique exterior styling and part-leather interiors.

Jeep Wrangler's existing 2.8-litre diesel engine has been updated to meet Euro 6 emission standards while the car has been given a series of important and valuable updates.

The Jeep Wrangler 75th Anniversary costs starts at £34,765 for the 2-dr 75th Anniversary 2.8 CRD auto rising to £36,435 for the 4dr 75th Anniversary 3.6 V6 auto.

Kia's city car star gets EMG discount

CAR buyers who take out a Kia test drive are being offered £1,000 off the price of a new car, as the Korean car maker celebrates 25 years in the UK.

The summer offer, which runs until September, has been launched across all of Kia's UK dealerships, including in Cambridge dealerships EMG Kia Cambridge on Milton Road and EMG Kia Ely.

The offer is announced as Kia reveals a new range of cars for the UK including the new Kia Picanto, which topped the City Car segment in the JD Power reliability survey released this week. The 2016 Kia Picanto is a five-door hatchback with three new levels of equipment - 'I Air', 'SE' and 'Sport'.

A second new Kia model, the Kia Rio five-door hatchback, has also been updated with new equipment levels for 2016 and is available under the new scheme.

Kia says: "With a test drive proving a valuable part of the car-buying experience, customers will benefit from this exclusive offer. With many consumers now choosing to shop for their vehicles online, Kia believes that taking a test drive is still an important part of buying a car as it allows customers to really experience the vehicle for themselves."

KIA PICANTO: Topped City Car sector in this week's JD Power survey

Kia is celebrating 25 years in the UK after arriving in 1991. In that time, the South Korean manufacturer has sold over 750,000 cars. Each week Kia sells an average of 1,800 new cars across its dealership network, according to latest sales figures.

The most popular car is the compact Kia Picanto, which has sold 152,000 units since it was introduced in 2004.

TROUBLE: Simple changes needed

Call to make roads safer for older drivers

BRITISH roadways should be modified to make them less dangerous for older drivers, a road safety organisation has suggested.

A Government-backed report by the Older Drivers Task Force, managed by the Road Safety Foundation, has highlighted that the UK does not take the needs of older drivers into account when developing its road design standards – especially at T junctions and intersections, where 55-65 per cent of accidents occur.

It argues that by taking these considerations into account, all road users will benefit.

John Plowman, chairman of the Older Drivers Task Force, said: "Looked at through an older driver's prism, the current road system doesn't do them many favours."

One solution is installing more mini-roundabouts.

Fuel prices creep up again as pound falls

MOTORISTS have been hit with rising fuel prices for four months in a row, new figures show.

In June unleaded went up by 1.5 pence per litre (ppl) and diesel by 1.66 ppl, according to the RAC.

The impact of the 11 per cent fall in the value of the pound after the EU referendum was softened by a 6 per cent fall in the oil price.

A litre of unleaded has gone up by more than 10 pence since the beginning of March to £1.12, while a litre of diesel has risen by nearly 11 pence over the period to also reach £1.12.

RAC fuel spokesman Simon Williams said: "It is good news that fuel prices are so far weathering the Brexit storm."

"Wholesale prices have remained relatively stable after an initial small upward jolt as a result of the pound falling on news of the referendum result."

"The fact the oil price dropped at the same time lessened the negative effect of the pound's devaluation. We may well see pump prices rise slightly in July, but current indications are that this is unlikely to be the shock rise some were predicting."

Youngsters 'fess up to bad driving habits

DRIVERS aged 25-34 are most likely to have bad driving habits, according to a new survey by AA Tyres.

Although younger drivers are generally considered to be the most dangerous on the roads, the poll discovered that so-called 'Generation Y' drivers (those born in the Eighties and Nineties) were most likely to have 11 of the 12 'bad habits' included in the survey, including eating or drinking behind the wheel and hard braking.

Almost nine in 10 people in this age group (88 per cent) admitted to regularly adjusting in-car tech, such as radios and satellite navigation systems, while driving, and almost as many (87 per cent) were guilty of braking hard and late, and driving while tired.

The survey also found roughly two-thirds (66 per cent) regularly fail to indicate at the appropriate time, such as when leaving roundabouts, and more than half (53 per cent) are often found driving in the middle lane of the motorway when the inside lane is clear.

But a massive 90 per cent of those aged 45-64 admitted to regularly speeding, so there you go.

Discounts often mean you're better off buying a new car

EVER wondered which car manufacturers offer the best discounts? Well... if you're after a Renault Grand Scenic or a Ford Focus then you might be in luck.

According to car sale website AutoeBid.com these two models attract some of the biggest discounts available with dealerships willing to shave literally £1,000s off the price in return for a sale.

AutoeBid.com secures the discount by having dealerships bid against each other in a 'reverse auction' to provide buyers with the best possible deal.

The discounts mean that, often, buying a new car can be better value than buying used – as shown below for the Seat Leon, BMW 3 Series and Skoda Octavia.

However, if you're planning to strike a deal on a new Jaguar F-Pace or Fiat 124 Spyder then you could be out of luck.

Chris Greener, MD of AutoeBid.com said: "Only small discounts are available for new models. When the new Volvo XC90 and Kia Sportage models emerged there was almost no discount available. Now they have been around for a few months, a discount of over 8% is possible."

THE JAGUAR F-PACE: Not being discounted – at all

"Also cars which experience a large demand like the new BMW M2, are a challenge to supply let alone achieve a discount for."

"The reasons some makers are happier to discount depends on factors such as production targets, competing models and ultimate position in the vehicle's lifecycle."

AutoeBid.com are so familiar with the discounts on offer, they can even tell buyers the minimum saving to expect when purchasing a car through the site.

According to recent figures from AutoeBid.com, here are the best and worst cars to get discounts on:

Here's the 10 cars with the biggest discounts when bought through AutoeBid.com:

Adaptive headlights and LED lights for Vauxhalls

Vauxhall is introducing Adaptive Forward Lighting (AFL) and full LED headlamps to its new Zafira Tourer and Mokka X models.

The optional AFL LED headlamps produce a bright white light that automatically adapts to the driving situation, with nine individual functions that both optimise visibility and save energy.

"The widespread availability of intelligent LED technology is the best way to significantly reduce the risks of night-time driving," said Brit Mark Adams, Vice President, Design Europe. "The new Vauxhall Zafira Tourer and Mokka X with their optional AFL LED headlamps are important steps towards realising this potential."

Vauxhall recognised the risks of night-time driving a number of years ago. It was the first manufacturer to bring AFL with bi-xenon headlamps to the compact market in 2003, and the Vauxhall Astra was the first compact car with cornering lights in 2004, followed by the Zafira in 2005. Embracing its tradition of making innovative technology features available across the product range, Vauxhall introduced halogen headlamp-based AFL in the Corsa in 2006.

ADAPTIVE LIGHTING: As adopted by Vauxhall

Vauxhall now offers AFL in almost every passenger car model and the technology is developing constantly. For example, IntelliLux LED Matrix Light, which takes LED technology to the highest level, made its world premiere in the compact class last year on the new Vauxhall Astra.

The new Zafira Tourer and Mokka X, with adaptive forward lighting and full LED functionality for all headlamp and signal functions, mark the next milestone in the rollout of LED technology from Vauxhall. Similar to the Astra's matrix system, AFL LED delivers the benefits of adaptive forward lighting without the moving elements. Instead of switching LEDs on or off in a variety of combinations, AFL LED adapts to the driving situation and the presence of other road users by automatically changing the lighting pattern of the headlamps.

The optional AFL LED headlamps have nine functions, each designed for a different road situation to provide optimal visibility. At speeds above 34mph, Country Light improves illumination of the road and verges when driving in rural areas. The range of illumination in the driving lane is longer, while the distribution of light on the offside is lower to prevent dazzling oncoming traffic. In addition, the improved illumination of the roadside verges enables earlier recognition of potentially dangerous objects including wild animals.

When cornering, AFL LED activates Cornering/Curve Light, which switches on an additional left or right LED illuminating the road in the direction of travel, depending on the steering angle or turn signal. Cornering/Curve Light switches on automatically at speeds under 25mph when the indicators are in use and/or the steering angle changes from the straight-ahead position and crosses a certain threshold. Cornering/Curve Light switches off when signalling stops and the steering is returned to the straight-ahead position, it is active up to a maximum speed of 43mph.

At speeds under 34mph, AFL LED automatically activates Town Light. Compared with the Country Light function, the beam is closer to the area near the car and wider at the sides, with the cornering lights operating at reduced intensity. The improved illumination helps the driver to see the sides of the road and avoid potential accidents, such as those involving pedestrians.

The Manoeuvring Light function illuminates the area around the vehicle when driving or reversing into a parking space, making it easier to see the surrounding area.

Leys Leisure Vacancies

Casual Swimming teachers

Pay dependant on qualifications plus uniform, free parking and pension

Leys Leisure currently has vacancies for ASA Level 1 or 2 qualified swimming teachers to assist with swimming lessons. Previous experience of teaching a variety of group lessons of differing age and ability is essential. The successful applicant will be approachable, friendly and patient in nature. Candidates must have good communication skills and the ability to inspire confidence and motivate others.

Recreation Attendants

Pay dependant on qualifications plus uniform, free parking and pension

Leys Leisure also has vacancies for Recreation Attendants with a valid NPLQ to cover shifts in both the swimming pool and Sports Hall. Casual hours available with the possibility of some fixed shifts. Senior Scientific Associate

Department/Location: Cancer Research UK Cambridge Institute
£28,982-£37,768 • Ref: SW09601

Europe's top cancer charity, Cancer Research UK, has combined with the University of Cambridge to fund the world class Cancer Research UK Cambridge Institute, situated on the Addenbrooke's Biomedical Campus in Cambridge.

As part of the University Of Cambridge School Of Clinical Medicine, the Institute's research ranges from basic cancer biology through translational cancer research to clinical application. The Institute currently houses over 400 researchers and support staff with 22 research groups and associated core facilities in a state-of-the-art research facility.

The Cambridge Institute Bioanalytical Core Facility (BCF) provides technical advice, direction and service to scientists at all levels of the Institute and external collaborators. The BCF offers a diverse analytical service for the quantification of small molecules to a wide range of research and clinical based projects and trials (requiring a regulated, GCP for Clinical Laboratories environment).

We are recruiting to expand our core bioanalytical mass spectrometry capabilities and require a skilled, experienced scientist to join our team in providing bioanalytical support to research groups within the institute. The successful candidate will be responsible for:

- The daily maintenance, calibration and operation of the latest Thermo Scientific and Sciex Triple quadrupole, QTOF instruments (Vantage, 6500, and 6600) and associated UHPLC systems.
- Scheduling projects and ensuring equipment is running optimally.
- Developing quantitative LC-MS/MS based assays together with junior lab members.
- Validating LC-MS/MS based assays to the current EMEA guidelines to support clinical trials.
- Providing BCF performance metrics to core facility manager.

You will ideally have a PhD or equivalent experience in a relevant discipline, coupled with advanced scientific and laboratory knowledge in the analytical field. Experience of clinical trials and a good understanding of the MHRA regulations surrounding clinical work would be advantageous, as it will be an essential part of the role.

Situated on the Cambridge Biomedical Campus adjacent to other world-class research laboratories and Addenbrooke's Hospital, the Institute aims to link the laboratory to the clinic carrying out cancer research of direct relevance to patients. We aim to save more lives by preventing, controlling and curing cancer. Join us and bring forward the day when all cancers are cured.

Once an offer of employment has been accepted, the successful candidate will be required to undergo a basic disclosure (criminal records check) check and a security check.

Paffett thrilled after first podium of 2016

GARY Paffett was thrilled after enjoying his best weekend of the DTM season at Zandvoort, following up a fourth-place finish in the first of the two races with a trip to the podium.

His second place in race two was his best result of the year and was a reminder of what he can achieve when his Mercedes-AMG C63 is performing as it should.

"Up until (Zandvoort) we'd never had a full weekend to prepare the car, test and get everything," he said.

"There had always been some kind of problem in Friday or Saturday practice.

"This time the car worked straight out of the box and felt very good. The car was really quick.

"For me, the second place rounded off a fantastic weekend where I had two good results.

"It was my first podium of the season, and it makes a difference when you come away from a weekend with a lot of points.

"It makes you more motivated, and everyone in the team feels better."

Motorsport

He continued: "Our car was perfectly set up. If we can get that right again in Moscow, we are in with a chance of further podium finishes.

"The season so far has been one of ups and downs, but the championship is still wide open and there is everything to play for."

Paffett, 35, will now turn his attention to the Total Spa 24 Hours on July 30 and 31 when he will compete in his first GT3 race in a works-backed HTP Motorsport Mercedes-AMG GT3.

A 30-hour test last year, and an outing at the pre-test last month is about as much experience as Paffett has had in a GT3 car.

But his brief time with the car has clearly left an impression on him, and Paffett hopes to do more GT3 racing in future.

"I'm looking to do more GT racing but only as long as I can fit it in around the DTM calendar. DTM is still my priority."

Jeffs proud of players despite play-off defeat

ROB Jeffs was full of pride after seeing his Haverhill players give everything they had in a 5-1 defeat to Cambridge Lawn Tennis Club in an Aegon Team Tennis County Open play-off.

With promotion to the regional tier at stake, Haverhill's team of Josh Dashwood, Martin Pelliccioli, Tom Marsh, Gratz Senn and Brenton Mattheus went into the match as heavy underdogs.

And despite the loss, captain Jeffs said his players had excelled themselves.

"It was a great day, and our lads really upped their game. "They really responded well to going up against the team Cambridge had out."

Tennis

Senn scored Haverhill's only point, beating Sam Scharf in the singles, but Jeffs believes the experience will have served the team well.

"They're all young lads and will only get better," he said.

"And hopefully people will see that we have some good players at the club and that will encourage more people to join.

■ Haverhill's ladies team enjoyed two wins in the Norfolk & Suffolk League, Division One.

In their home fixture against

HIGH STANDARDS: The players who contested the Aegon Team Tennis promotion play-offs, from left, the Haverhill squad of Brenton Mattheus, Gratz Senn, Tom Marsh, Martin Pelliccioli and Josh Dashwood, and the Cambridge quartet of Ben Clark, Will Huyton, Chris Little and Sam Scharf

Culford, Sharon Mattheus and Marcia Armstrong won 6-2, 6-3 and 6-3, 6-1.

Rachel Jeffs and Abi Cartwright-Thomas won 7-5, 6-2 and 6-1, 6-0 to complete an 8-0 overall win.

Their next match, at home to Risbygate, saw Haverhill claim another 8-0 win.

Mattheus and Armstrong won 6-1, 6-1 and 6-3, 6-0, while Cartwright-Thomas and Danielle Miller won 6-2, 6-2 and 6-1, 6-0.

Football

Rovers fall to double from Hall

JAMES Hall netted twice as Haverhill Rovers were beaten 5-1 away to St Neots in Tuesday's pre-season friendly.

Rovers were 1-0 winners against the same opponents last year, but there was to be no repeat after Hall put the hosts ahead just three minutes into the contest, finishing past goalkeeper Charlie Turner from close range after being played in.

Hall added St Neots second on 20 minutes, powerfully heading past Rovers goalkeeper Turner from Ryan Hawkins' cross.

Rovers got back into the match just 14 seconds after the restart, with former West Watting striker Danny Hill starting and finishing a move which also involved Ryan Weaver.

However, three goals in the final 10 minutes settled the match in favour of St Neots.

First, substitute Tom Wood volleyed past Turner from another Hawkins cross on 83 minutes.

Dan Hobbs, who had a spell on loan at Rovers last season, stroke home from 15 yards three minutes later, again being set up by Hawkins.

And the fifth came in added time when the ball went in off Dubi Ogbonna after Turner had saved from Jordan Brown.
